THE ANNUAL MEETING

The Horticultural Society Will Meet at Chestertown

JANUARY 6, 7 AND 8, 1920

The great Horticultural event of the year for the peop e of the Delaware-Chesapeake Peninsula is the meeting of the Peninsula Horticultural Society and this annual event which will occur at Chestertown, Maryland, January 6, 7 and 8, 1920, promises to be as interesting and as profitable as any meeting in the past. A very instructive program has peen prepared and while it is not quite completed, assurance is given of speakers and practical men in this part of the country. Dr. Thomas J. Headles. Entomologist, of New Jersey, will be present and give the up-to-date methods of controlling insects that infest farm crops, especially the orchard. B. W. Leach of the U. S. Bureau of Entomology, will give in detail the rein preventing the injury of the so-called A half dozen or more of the best men of the Maryland Agricultural College have already agreed to be present. Dr Bomberger will deliver a very interesting, popular lecture on "The Balance Wheel of the Social Order." Professor Cory will report on insects. Professor Shaw will give a discusion on orchard demonstration work in Maryland, Professor E. C Auchter will talk on 'Apple Prunning Experiments' and sults of work in Delaware during 1919

"Orchard Pollination Studies," and Professor R. Wellington will discuss tomato growing. Dr. Woods, President of the College, has promised to be present if possible. Delaware College will be represented by Professor C A. McCue, Dr. Thomas F. Manns, Professor LeCate and others. We will have also, Mr. B. W. Anspon. Granogue, Delaware who will speak on 'Better Home Grounds." Mr. G. Hale Harrison, Berlin, waryland, has agreed to give a talk covering his experience in 1919 on fertilizing, pruning, spraying, picking, selling and consigning peaches. It goes without saying that the best practical men of the Peninsula will be on hand with papers and will enter into their work during the year. Exhibits of fruit and vegetable; promise to be as fine this year as in previous the discussion and so give the results of

LETTER FROM MISSIONARY

An interesting letter from an Alaskan Missionary to a member of St. Anne's Parish: STEPHEN'S VILLAGE ALASKA

My dear Mrs. the spiendid bundles which you so kindly sent us came, Mr. Horton wrote me Miss Edith Eliason, of Wilmington, of your kind gift of ten dollars toward our Christmas candy. Thank you so much. We are expecting the last sceamboat up the river. It hardly seems possible that winter is so near us. The mills across the river have already put on their dresses of white, the days are getting shorter and shorter, and we will mong white people for awhile. I't. City. among white people for awhile. Ft. City.

Yukon is an old Alaskan town with much interesting history. It is now a great tourist centre. From here can be May Thompson, of Chestertown, for a Mrs. M. Warner, of Wilmington, has seen the sun at midnight. Our mission nospital is there and Dr. and Mrs. Burke are doing a splendid work among about 500 natives. Archdeacon Stuck makes his headquarters here. A postoffice, government school, three fur trading stores, wireless station, and "road houses" (inns) make it a centre of much activity. The Bishop's visit was of course, a great event in our village. He came this year in a small boat, the "Pehcah" launch being out of order. He said he thought his days of travening in this way were over and of course, we were surprised to see the Bishop come like has been visiting the rough old timers, who have been in Mrs. W. B. Hall. the hijs all winter prospecting for gold or trapping game.

He was made very welcome by the nauves. There were baptisms, confirmation and marriages. His visit too neant the Holy Communion for us. The visiting of fish camps, doing up jam, jelly, etc., from the native perries, viz: red raspberries, blue berries, currants and cran erries with the young women.

School will soon begin. The natives are beginning to come back and our busy days will begin. I have an adult school after the regular sessions and it Mrs. George Pinder. school after the regular sessions and its most interesting. If you could peep in at our sewing class on Tuesday from 6.30 to 8.00 P. M., you would be interested in seeing the struggle in using the thimble on the right finger. The natives use one on the fore-finger for sewing moose skin. The young women bring garments to me..d or make over.

Dear Mrs. —— will you tell the members of your Auxiliary that I appreciate more than I can say your help. May we have your continued interest and prayers? While the work is extremely interesting there are many per-plexing problems and it is only with God's help that we can solve them. Your part is a large and important one for without your gifts and prayers, we on the field would be so helpless.

Lovingly yours, HARRIET M. BEDELL, St. Audrew's Mission.

HOG CHOLERA UNDER CONTROL

The State Live Stock Sanitary Board nas made a remarkable demonstration in Delaware in the control of hog cholera. In this work it has been as-sisted by Dr. v. 1. Zirkow, a special representative of the U. S Bureau of Animal Industry, who has been in Delaware nearly two years and has given constant attention to outbreaks and to ing serum and virus.

There were so many outbreaks of the disease in all parts of the state that after consultation with Governor Townthe Attorney General and the State Treasurer, it was decided t use the emergency fund for the surpose of controlling this disease. In nearly every small settlement, especially where farm hands and colored people lived, all the hogs were vaccinated to anywhere the prevention measures were applied.

It is true that in many cases the outbreaks were not reported until too late to save the hogs, but even in those cases hogs near the in ected farms have been vaccinated and in this way the spread of the disea e has been checked.

The fund for the free distribution of serum has now been exhau ted and farmers must pay for the serum as well s for the services of the veterinarian. but the demonstration that has been vantage of using preventive methods and farmers can well afford to pay this with vigor. Dr. Zurkow will attend

School Site Purchased

The New Castle County Board of Education at a meeting Monday ordered the purchase of a site in the southern end of Middletown, for the erection of during the past few years has become one of the finest ducking shores on the bay. The price offered for the farm is $7,000. The school is planned to accommodate pupils from Mill Lane, Armstrong and Brown Cottage, as well as Middletown, who are at present crowded into the small structure in use here. Wallace E. Hance, of Wilmington, who has been retained as architect, accompanie t day to look over the site in order to de-termine the size and type of building best fitted for the purposes. The funds for the building are to be taken from the appropriation of the entire county, and not from the district.

An especially interesting meeting of the Middletown New Century Club was held on Tuesday afternoon of this week. It being Armistice Day, the cub sang the National hymns, Star Spangled Banner and America, with Miss Margaret Pleasanton at the plano. Miss Hart, the speaker of the afternoon, was called to Boston to explain what Delaware has done for the foreigner. Miss M. H. Burnett, an able assistant of Miss Hart, talked to the club on Americanization. She told of the remarkable work done in Wilmington and how the foreigner is responding to the efforts put forth in his behalf. She even thought it would be worth white for Mildletown to do something for the foreigner when he is among us. Every member of the club should have heard this fine talk on such a noble work. All club members are requested to come out to-day (Saturday) and help to

HELP WANTED

By ISABEL STONELEY

Copyright, 1919, by the McClure News

"I tell ye, I don't want no wim folks 'round my place." the judge called lustily over the telephone party line. Can't you send me down a good, steady young man? Eh? Yes, bookseeping and making up the payroll. Eighteen to start. If he's pretty smart

I might give him twenty."
"Sorry, judge," came the answer from Layton's Business agency. "We haven't anyone on our books ex-cepting Miss Preston, and Miss An-

"Don't want no wimmen folks," repeated the judge flatly. "Can't abide 'em. There ain't a woman in the mill, Layton, and we've got to allow them boys some leeway and latitude. If I put a female in the office they'll have to sit straight and talk soft and keep their hats off, and summer's coming on, and I can't risk it. Huh? You'll recommend her yourself? Nope. Had trouble before. They make more worry round the place and upset everybody's comfort. Send me out a good, steady-going young man and I'll take him."

That was Wednesday afternoon, and promptly at seven the following morning, when the thin black line of workers filed through the high board entrance to the mills. Kate Preston waited her chance to follow them, nodding to Timmy Ryan as he passed by, grinning, in his father's madeover trousers and smiling at all the other little chaps from the brass-finishing de-

"Is that the office over there?" she asked the timekeeper finally and the judge, just climbing down from his nusky little roadster, heard her, and bristled instantly.

Kate stood unflinchingly until he had finished telling her his general and conclusive opinion of women workers, and when he had finished she smiled at him. It was no propitiatory smile; no wheedling smile. It was comradely and sympathetic. "You'd better try me, Judge," she said calmly. "Help is scarce everywhere, and it isn't a very desirable place, you know. Mr. Layton says you're pretty hard to suit. It's a long way back to town, and I came out last night. I've taken a room up at Mrs. Ryan's for a week, and if you don't mind I'll just go in and try it any-

Before the judge had recovered his resence of mind she was already in the office and had her hat off. He watched her warily. Rollins, the assistant bookkeeper, received her friendly greeting with a grunt, taking

Old Man Adams, the purchasing agent, gave her one long, appraising look over his glasses, smiled and went on opening mail. Sam Doty, the judge's own special messenger and long-suffering office slave, looked scared when she took the judge's old alpaca coat off its accustomed hook and hung her own cloak there. Yet she stayed. Day after day passed, and while the judge was grouchy and ungracious to her, she kept her place and made good. Gradually she lifted burdens from his shoulders, looking after the filing, the personal mail, the telephone orders, classifying, smoothing, organizing, until even Adams would cough and beam approval on her. "Pretty likely young woman," he ventured one day, and the judge grinned back appreciatively.

"Exception always proves the rule, Adams," he said. "Don't spoil her." She had been there nearly two months, and in that time Timmy had gossiped with her and so had his mother. She was told of the shadow that hung over the factory; how Bob Dexter had come home from college and had been in the way. The judge had frankly not wanted to be bothered with him. He wanted to run his own

"Time enough when I pass along, Bob," he had said testily. "We don't need you down here'

"And the judge missed a bunch of money one day," Timmy finished up. "Pay day the cash comes from the bank in new bills, and he had three $1,000 bills himself, and they were stolen, and he says Bob took 'em, and Bob never come back." "Too bad," Kate smiled, and forgot all about the story until one day as she took down her own cloak the judge's old gray alpaca coat took another tumble from its adjacent pegand as she lifted it she felt the stiff crumple of new bills in the inner $1.00 per year crumple of new bills in, the inner pocket. There were three of themnice, bright, brand-notes. She walked slowly over to the judges lit-tle inner room and laid them before

"There they are," she said gently.

"How the devil did you ever find them?" demanded the judge joyously. "I came to find them, Judge Dexter," Kate told him seriously, sitting on the edge of his desk. "Bob told me all about it after we became engaged, and how hopeless it was trying to make you know they must be right under your very nose around here some place. He couldn't come and look for them, so I came. Do you mind very

The judge glanced warily out, but its afternoon lull of quiet. He laid the three bills back in her hand.

"Take the pesky things, my dear," he said huskily, "and call up Bob and tell him for me he's got more sense than his old dad."

WARM FIGHT OVER BAY RUM

People of St. Thomas Greatly Agitated as to Whether It is Good as Beverage.

The little island of St. Thomas which the United States purchased from the Danish government, is chiefly famous for the production of bay rum. The bay leaves are raised on the adjacent island of St. John and the rum is made in St. Thomas.

One of the first happenings which came to St. Thomas, after its transfer to the sovereignty of the United States, was prohibition. Along with prohibition came a greatly increased sale of bay rum, and about the same time it was widely rumored that a numler of persons had been made ill by using bay rum internally. One tanufacturer of bay rum was nade so indignant by this charge that he had his product analyzed by a chemist and published the results in a local newspaper, proving conclusively that bay rum is just as harmless when applied to the lining of the stomach as when used on the scalp.

The editor of the opposing paper. took is be with him, not on the ground that bay rum was poisonous, but contending that to drink this famous prodact was a violation of the most ancient traditions of the island. Bay rum had been produced on the island for 200 years, it had never been drunk before, and even the most burning thirst was no justification for wasting bay rum by swallowing it.

But this conservative seems to be getting the worst of the argument. Most of the St. Thomasians find 45 per cent bay rum a satisfactory substitute for five per cent beer.

"Merode" Underwear Week

QUR "CHILDREN'S AD" appeal has been so great a success that we wish our customers to understand that Fogel's Department Store is still for another week at the special service of the Little Folks. Meanwhile, since it is "Underwear Week" for the world-famed "Merode" hand finished Underwear, Fogel's, as the sole representative in this County south of Wilmington for that superior article of Underwear, are joining the manufacturers and thousands of the leading merchants all over the land in a wide advertising campaign setting forth the great merits of this splendid article. Hear what the manufacturers say about their goods:

"Visit the dealer in your town who carries these garments. He will be glad to show you the different models and fabrics. This comfortable Underwear is not only warm, but is also beautifully tailored. Every garment is cut by hand, and fits every curve of the body; thus allowing perfect freedom of motion. Wearing comfort and good looks are aflorded by the smooth patent Flatlock seams.

"A variety of models—vests, drawers, tights and union suits for women, girls and children. Extra sizes for tall or stout women.

"Then, too, you will be surprised at the very moderate prices asked for 'Merode' when you see the high quality of this beautiful hand-finished Underwear."

We wish to add to this description that every "Merode" sold by us is not only guarantee; by the makers themselves, but also by us. And we are here to stand back of that guarantee.

Our customers will be pleased to hear that we are able to offer them our large selections of "Merode Underwear at VERY LOW PRICES. Two things brought about this result; 1st, beliving a year ago that both wool and cotton would be higher in price-materials and labor also going up—we laid in an unusually big stock of "Merodes." 2d. An extremely warm winter last year greatly reduced our sales, and left us with a large quantity of these goods on our hands. Hence we are happy to adv se our patrons, that we are offering these standard stocks of "Merode" Underwear for prices way below those now demanded for the very same goods. It is certainly a bargain opportunity in high grade underwear.

The latest course offered is that in Home Nursing, organized through the efforts of Miss Deckman of the Home Economics Department and conducted by Miss Mary Morar, a graduate ducted by Miss Mary Morar, a graduate nurse who is now devoting her time to Red Cross activities. The class meets each Monday evening, and has an enrollment of thirty-eight members.

During the recent Red Cross drive in accordance with the precedent established during similar drives in the past, the Women's College went over the top in one day, with a one hundred percent membership. The drive was launched during Chapel exercises by the chairman of The Women's College auxiliary, Miss Bertha Welcome, and the membership chairman, Miss Vivian Porter, at which time Misses Edwine Long, Mabel Tebo and Alice Roop made inspiring talks on the fine work of the college auxiliary in the past, the splendid na-

Tebo and Alice Roop made inspiring talks on the fine work of the college auxiliary in the past, the splendid nature of work of the Red Cross today and the urgency of the appeal for still greater service which the present crisis makes to each individual.

The chapel talks during the past week have been of unusual interest. On Tuesday Rev. William Haupt of the Newark Episcopal Church talked very helpfully on the wisdom of choosing friends among books. On Thursday morning Mrs. Lucia Ames Leade of Boston who was one of the American representatives to the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom at its meeting in Zurick, Switzerland last May, told of the work of this organization, especially during this meeting at The Hague in 1915. She described the dreadful health conditions in central Europe resulting from malnutrition and gave as the great purpose of this organization the working out of some constructive program whereby these conditions and others resulting from the ravages of war, may be alleviated. The third talk of the week was given by Mrs. Rex Atwater, formerly Miss Charlotte Penfield. a Student Volunteer The third talk of the week was given by Mrs. Rex Atwater, formerly Miss Charlotte Penfield, a Student Volunteer secretary, in the interest of the International Student Volunteer Conference which is to meet in DesMoines, Iowa, from December 31 to January 4th.
